Golf stars and crowd favourites at the 2026 BMW International Open.

+++ Masters champions Patrick Reed and Sergio García tee off at the BMW International Open (1-5 July 2026) +++ Munich debut for PGA TOUR winner Carlos Ortiz +++ Bernd Wiesberger in excellent form at Golfclub München Eichenried +++ Crowd favourites Andrew "Beef" Johnston and Rafa Cabrera Bello as well as other world-class golfers on the entry list +++

Munich. In two months' time, the BMW International Open, the only DP World Tour (DPWT) event in Germany, will take place at Golfclub München Eichenried from 1st to 5th July 2026. BMW is organising the iconic tournament for the 37th time. Visitors can look forward to the familiar atmosphere, the first-class BMW brand experience and an interesting, high-calibre field of players. Masters winners Patrick Reed (USA) and Sergio García (ESP) will be returning to Munich, as will Bernd Wiesberger (AUT), who celebrated his ninth title on the DPWT last weekend. Mexican Carlos Ortiz will be making his first appearance at the BMW International Open.

Ortiz is very rarely seen in Europe and has never played in Germany before; that will change at the BMW International Open. The 35-year-old joined the PGA TOUR winner's circle at the 2020 Houston Open and underlined his class last year with a fourth place at the U.S. Open.

Sergio García and Patrick Reed have even known what it feels like to triumph at a major since their Masters titles in 2017 and 2018 respectively. The two Ryder Cup greats really appreciate the BMW International Open and are looking forward to coming to Munich again this year. Reed is currently in impressive form. The 35-year-old has already won two DPWT tournaments this year, leads the season standings and recently finished tied twelfth at the Masters.

Austrian Bernd Wiesberger is also on a high. The 40-year-old triumphed at the China Open last weekend, his first win on the DPWT since 2021.

Wiesberger is also an avowed fan of the BMW International Open and will again tee off in Eichenried in July.

Munich can also look forward to the return of a real crowd favourite.

Andrew "Beef" Johnston (ENG) is an asset to any golf tournament and will certainly be accompanied by many fans again at the BMW International Open 2026. The same applies to Rafa Cabrera Bello (ESP), who has entered for the highlight of the golf season in Germany, as well as South Africans Thriston Lawrence (winner of the 2023 BMW International Open) and Jayden Schaper (current number three in the "Race to Dubai"), as well as the DPWT "Rookie of the Year", Martin Couvra from France.

Tickets for the BMW International Open are available at:

www.bmw-golfsport.com/tickets

Discounted tickets are available for young people (15-17 years), students and people with disabilities. The ticket price includes a free shuttle bus service between Ismaning S-Bahn station and the golf club from Thursday to Sunday, as well as free parking at the tournament site, subject to availability. Admission to the Pro-Am tournament (Wednesday, 1 July 2026) is generally free. Children and young people up to and including the age of 14 also have free admission on all other days. For the first time, the BMW International Open 2026 will offer an after-work ticket for Thursday or Friday, which is valid from 3 pm and is available at half the price of a day ticket.
